Workshop on Frontiers in Measurement and Survey Methods

May 7-8, 2025 in Naples

We are pleased to invite submissions to the first edition of the Workshop on Frontiers in Measurement and Survey Methods to be held in Naples on May 7 and 8, 2025.

The aim of the workshop is to bring together researchers working on topics related to the design and use of new measurement tools and experiments within surveys in a broad range of fields to showcase recent methodologies and applications and discuss outstanding challenges. Topics include—but are not limited to—measurement of subjective expectations, preferences, beliefs, social norms, attitudes and intentions; use and analysis of open-ended questions; the econometrics of hypothetical choice data; combining survey and administrative data.

Two keynote lectures will be given by Andrew Caplin (New York University) and Basit Zafar (University of Michigan). There will also be a panel discussion with researchers involved in the design of experimental measures in large organizations.

We welcome submissions from both senior and junior researchers (including PhD students). The deadline for submissions is January 15, 2025. Please submit your paper to csef@unina.it specifying [Measurement and Survey Workshop] in the subject. There will be no conference fees.

The organizing committee is composed by Orazio Attanasio (Yale University), Michele Giannola, Tullio Jappelli, Armando Miano, and Valeria Zurla (University of Naples Federico II and CSEF). The workshop is co-funded by CSEF, DiSES, the University of Naples Federico II, Yale University, and the Next Generation EU - GRINS Project.
